A well-known lecturer on cookery, who manages an apartment house and restaurant where she caters to nearly a hundred guests every day, and who runs a summer hotel, where her guests number more than five hundred, says she is never tired. She is on her feet from six to eight hours every day in her kitchen and about her house. She is not a young woman. She has been a housekeeper more than forty years. And she weighs close to two hundred pounds. Most women of her weight and age would be dead tired at the end of the day if they did what she does. So there must be a reason for her freshness. There is. She saves her steps. And she saves her steps by planning her work and having things handy.

When her summer hotel was being built she stood on the ground where her kitchen was to be, and in imagination did her work. Then she told the builders how the kitchen was to be planned. This idea she carries into everything. She never takes an unnecessary step.

Not all housekeepers can have their kitchens built to suit them. But they can arrange their kitchens to suit themselves. And in his arrangement they can save themselves many unnecessary steps.

Before arranging a kitchen it would be wise to stand, as did this woman, and mentally go through the processes of cooking, dishwashing and other kitchen work, and then put the things necessary to this work near where it will be done.

The cooking knives and forks should be placed on a rack or hung near the range so that when they are wanted they can be reached instantly without running to a drawer and hunting them out. The cooking utensils should be arranged in the same handy fashion. A kitchen is a workshop, and it should be furnished as a workshop. A carpenter does not carelessly put all his tools out of sight. He has a place for his things and keeps them in it, but they are handy to where he is working.

It will be claimed that cooking utensils arranged this way will get dusty. This is true, and for a modern kitchen a modern cleaner, such as some vacuum apparatus, should be used. This is not always possible, and if it is not, the cooking utensils can be carefully wiped before being used. This is less work than running to a cupboard, frequently a dark cupboard, or one under a dresser where the housekeeper must stoop for the pan or pot needed.

Not only should the kitchen be arranged so that everything is handy, but when any special operation is to be undertaken, such as making bread or pie or a stew, everything needed for the work should be collected before proceedings start. Think out what is wanted, if possible get it all at once, and put it where the work is to be done. Then, when the pie or bread or stew is half made, it will not be necessary to wipe the hands and run and get some forgotten ingredient, and in five minutes repeat the operation, and so on until a lot of time and energy have been thoughtlessly wasted. Brains are needed in housekeeping if it is to be done properly. But if brains are used, housekeeping is no more tiresome than any other occupation, and not half so exacting as many.

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

Mrs. Hagens will entertain with bridge tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Deering gave a dinner party to friends last night.

Mrs. B. F. Dillingham has as house guests Miss Carrie Bond of Kohala and Mrs. Gossin of Walluku, Maui.

The Service Bridge Club meets this afternoon with Mrs. Turner, wife of Lieutenant Turner.

Dr. and Mrs. Grossman are expecting Mrs. Shepherd, mother of Mrs. Grossman, to arrive from the Coast tomorrow.

Mrs. Randolph G. Moore will entertain the card club on Wednesday of this week at her home, 1330 Kinau street.

Captains and Mrs. E. A. Sturgis, from the Fifth Cavalry cantonment, were house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder during a part of last week.

Colonel and Mrs. Edward T. Brown have been house guests of Colonel and Mrs. D. J. Humbaugh at their First Field Artillery post quarters at Schofield Barracks during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coombs gave a very charming small dinner party on Saturday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gowan of Portage, Wis., who are visitors to Honolulu. The dinner partook of the nature of an Hawaiian feast.

Mrs. Carroll Neal, wife of Lieutenant Neal, and baby will spend Washington's birthday with Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Withington on Prospect street.

Bishop Osborne, who has been the house guest of Bishop and Mrs. Restarick for the past week, is again at the McDonald with his cousin, Mr. Noel Deery.

Mrs. Simpson, mother of Mrs. A. Frank Atherton, has been suffering with bronchitis for the past three weeks. Her friends will be glad to learn of her improvement, although she is not well yet.

The meeting of the Buckeye Club tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hitchcock promises to be very interesting. The host and hostess desire the evening to be a genuine Ohio night, and that all who are in the city, hailing from Ohio, whether tourists or citizens, be present.

Major and Mrs. William M. Cruickshank of the First Field Artillery post at Schofield Barracks and Mrs. William Holabird were week-end guests at the Young Hotel.

Dr. and Mrs. Moore and friends have been spending a short time on Tantalus at the mountain home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle.

The Hawaiian Hotel will give a dance for their guests and friends next Saturday night.

STRAGGLERS IN FIRST PLACE

The Guests' Club of this hotel gave a few interesting social evenings in the earlier part of the season, and now the management announces a dance.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wilder entertained their house guests in a very charming manner during the week-end. The entertainment consisted in an automobile trip around the island, stopping for lunch at Mrs. F. M. Swanzy's country home and spending the night at Aubrey's Inn, returning to Honolulu yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder's house guests are Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. Criss, Mr. Keyes and Miss Reynolds.

The Evening Service Bridge Club met on Saturday night at the home of Lieutenant and Mrs. Turner in the grounds of Kamehameha School for their usual interesting game of bridge.

When the scores were counted the prizes were awarded to General Macomb, Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Wooten.

The club is composed of General and Mrs. Macomb, Captain and Mrs. Marix, Major and Mrs. Neville, Major and Mrs. Wooten, Mrs. Frederick William Coleman, Captain and Mrs. Game, Colonel and Mrs. Wholley, Colonel and Mrs. Brown, Captain and Mrs. Carter, Lieutenant and Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Finch.

The week promises much social activity. In addition to a number of private functions, the Colonial ball will occupy most of the society people.

The patronesses are sparing no pains to make this event of great importance. Only those who are in masquerade costume will be permitted on the floor.

Leonard Withington, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Withington of Honolulu, has purchased the Newburyport Herald, one of the oldest newspapers published in the United States.

This newspaper began its publication in 1793, and for about forty years the father of Mr. D. L. Withington has been the literary editor.

Leonard Withington, the present owner, was on the repertorial staff of the Advertiser for a year.

FLORAL PARADE TROPHIES.

The prize pennants and banners which will be awarded by the Floral Parade Committee in accordance with the decision of the judges of the great pageant, have been placed on display in the show window of B. F. Ehlers & Co., by whom they were made. The prizes are all of silk, and are handsomer than those of any previous parade, both in coloring and design. The banners of the different Inter-Island princesses are especially effective.

HELD LUAU IN A TANK

Maui News: The Puunene Athletic Club is planning a reel novelty tonight. A luau and dance at Puunene is in itself inducement enough to draw a big crowd, but the novel idea of having the luau in the swimming tank will cause some people to gasp with astonishment, but they need not worry, it will be a tank without water, and if the weather is fine such an arrangement as the boys have planned, will be a genuine treat. After the luau a dance will follow in the clubhouse.

The prospects of this affair is to go towards defraying the cost of the new practice range. The boys are making great plans for turning out a champion crew next year, and everyone who attends the luau tonight can feel that they have contributed their

KAUAI DOWNS MAUI BOWLERS

Garden Island: The second Kauai Maui bowling contest was pulled off at the Kegel Club alley last Saturday and the home team had a walkover, which is indicated by the score of 4-755 to 4285 in favor of Kauai. An enthusiastic audience greeted the players, who played a tip-top game throughout. Kuhlman, Crawford and W. H. Rice were not in their usual form and consequently did not bowl up to their standard. This, however, was offset by the excellent work of mitte towards helping the good cause, and incidentally boosting Maui.

SOCCER GAME WAS DRAWN

The St. Louis and High School interscholastic soccer teams met on Friday and held each other down to a score of 1 to 1. The game was hotly contested from start to finish and both teams played well.

The first half ended in favor of the Highs, who had a goal after five minutes of play, and St. Louis opened the last half by keeping the ball in the vicinity of the Highs' goal. It was not until a few minutes before the final whistle blew, however, that that clever little Bill Hollinger of the Saints sent the ball through the Highs' goal, thus tying the score. Both teams have a husky bunch of determined players. Mr. Nelson acted as referee.

The line-up of the Saints was as follows:
Fullbacks, Hore and Lohs; half-backs, Akau, "Star" Swan and Marciel; forwards, Lopez, Chinito, Robinson (captain), Kuhlman and Hollinger; goal, Lowell.

WEST POINT NEEDS MEN.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—With 50 vacancies existing at the Military Academy, in spite of all efforts to secure the desired number of qualified eligibles for appointment as cadets through the ordinary channels, the War Department again has turned to Congress for relief.

Secretary Stimson is seeking the passage of a bill which would permit the academic officers to have recourse to the list of alternates after all of the qualified principals named by Congressmen have been appointed.
